

About me:

My name is Rojin Maharjan. I live in Harsiddhi, Lalitpur. I studied my +2 in Little Angels' College. And, I am currently pursuing my bachelor's degree in Computer Engineering from Kantipur Engineering College affiliated to Tribhuvan University. I study at college during day-time and join the AI training by evening.

About my organization:

I am currently working as a Computer Vision Intern at Pyware core Nepal Pvt. Ltd. It is a company dedicated to solving real-world problems using computer vision and deep learning. This organization works on building scalable, intelligent system ranging from facial recognition attendance systems to traffic monitoring and medical diagnostic tools. My role involves development and optimization of machine learning models for image classification, object tracking and real-time video analytics. My daily tasks include working on the python-based frameworks like OpenCV, TensorFlow, and YOLO for training and deploying vision-based models. This internship is helping me apply my academic knowledge in Computer Engineering in impactful real-world AI projects.

About my family business:

My mother is a tailor running her small business from home. And, my father works as an electrical maintenance at Blue Cross Hospital. He inspects the electrical equipment's used in the hospital. Whether it's maintaining equipment or handling emergency repairs, he's the go-to person when things need to be fixed. Despite of their own working culture we are focused on farming, focusing on different vegetables and fruits that we sell locally. Rather than just a business it is a family legacy. Mostly during spring-summer season they harvest avocados and guavas and then packed for sale. Mostly my family in involved in vegetable farming in the season and during off-season they focuses on their own work.

My hobbies:

When I am free, I love to spend my time drawing, painting and sketching. They help me enhance my creativity. I specialize in creating artistic representations of gods and goddesses. I also enjoy reading books. One of my favorite books is "Seto Dharti". And, I also enjoy playing football and going for running.

Secret about me:

I told my mom that me and my friends were just going for a bike ride to Ilam. In reality, we crossed the border and ended up in Sikkim.
